A black and white line drawing of a hanging lantern, designed as a coloring page. The lantern is centrally located and features several numbered sections for coloring. The top of the lantern has a small circle with the number 3. Below this is a dome-shaped section with the number 3. The lantern's body is divided into three vertical panels. The top of the body has a wide band with the number 6. Below this band, the three panels are labeled with numbers: the left and right panels have the number 4, and the central panel has the number 5. The main body of the lantern is divided into three vertical sections. The left and right sections are labeled with the number 3, and the central section is labeled with the number 1. Each of these three sections contains a large, stylized star. The central star is labeled with the number 5. The bottom of the lantern has a wide band with the number 6. Below this band, the lantern tapers into a triangular shape. The bottom section is divided into three panels labeled with the number 4, and the very bottom tip is labeled with the number 3. The background of the page is decorated with several five-pointed stars and a crescent moon. There are four stars on the left side and four stars on the right side, each labeled with the number 1. There are two crescent moons, one on the left and one on the right, each labeled with the number 2. The entire page is enclosed in a rounded rectangular border.
